What is a Karahi ?

A karahi is a type of thick, circular & deep vessel (similar in shape to a wok) used in Indian & Pakistani cuisine. It is useful for shallow or deep frying or for simmering of stews (which are often named after the utensil). Karahi are traditionally made out of cast iron, although other materials like stainless steel & copper are sometimes used & non-stick varieties do exist.

All of our dishes are freshly prepared & cooked to order in individual cast iron Karahi there is an approximate waiting time of 30 minutes for each special
